Teutonic Attacks From Gorizia To the Sea Repulsed in Many Section But Vienna Claims Successes South of Jaminio

BIG ALLIED OFFENSIVE DEVELOPING IN FLANDERS

British and Belgian Artillery Busy Preparing for Tremendous Blow At Kaiserism and Hosts of von Hindenburg in West

(Associated Press By U. S. Naval Communication Service)
NEW YORK, June 6—The great fight of the day yesterday was in the west, although there was some minor fighting at various parts of the eastern front, where the Russian armies are facing still the attenuated German forces. The Austrians, reinforced by the corps taken from the eastern front and hurled against the Italians in the west, yesterday attacked in serious ranks between Gorizia and the sea.

These attacks, all of which followed the most careful and furious artillery preparation, broke down under the fire of the Italian machine guns and cannon except in two places, where, according to reports from Rome, the Italians were forced back for some distance. This was particularly the case south of Jaminio, and here the Latin troops were unable to withstand the battering of the Austrian artillery.

But if the Italians lost some ground, they gained in other sectors, and the reports from Rome told of repulses of massed attacks by the Austrians.

In Mesopotamia the Russian army which is campaigning against the Turks reported that it had made advances with the capture of Baneh.

Signs are developing of preparation for a great offensive movement on the British front. The bombardment, which is of great proportions, is heaviest at Wysschaete, in Belgium, five miles south of Ypres.

British air attacks were made yesterday on the German bases in Belgium and simultaneously the British warships heavily bombarded Ostend and the naval base there, all of the attacking vessels returning uninjured.

ALLIED ARTILLERY IS BUSY IN THE WEST

PARIS, June 6—The official communique issued by the war office last night told of increased artillery activity along most of the western front. In the vicinity of Hurbise this activity was particularly marked, and in the sector of the Vaucelles plateau the fighting was desperate, but neither side managed to make any substantial gains. Reports issued by the Belgian war office told of heavy fighting by the Belgian troops in the neighborhood of Bixchoote and Steestraete, and marked activity on the part of the enemy north of Dixmude. The Belgian artillery was busy during the day, destructively bombarding German batteries and destroying enemy organizations near Bixchoote.

DISCOVERY MADE BY PEARY IS LAND, NOT MIRAGE

MacMillan Expedition Substantiates Former Discovery and Gains Valuable Data About Islands

(Associated Press By U. S. Naval Communication Service)
NEW YORK, June 6—Crockerland, which Peary claimed to have discovered and which subsequent expeditions did not find and termed a mirage that Peary had seen, actually exists, and his claims of discovery are now fully substantiated. MacMillan, who is now conducting an expedition to the far north, has sent to Dr. Osborn of the "Crockerland Committee" of the American Museum of Natural History his first detailed communication.

In his message to Dr. Osborn MacMillan said that he and his party have provisions only sufficient to last them until the last part of August. The relief ship Neptune, under Captain Bartlett, will sail for Etah in July.

MacMillan tells of his finding Crockerland to be an actuality and not a mere mirage, as had been surmised when two previous expeditions failed to find it, and so reported on their returns. It is a section covered with islands, the explorer says, and he has secured much valuable data regarding it.

VISITORS BARRED, CONVICTS RIOT

Troops Are Called Out and One Man Is Killed—Fire Does More Than $200,000 Damage

(Associated Press By U. S. Naval Communication Service)
JOLIET, Illinois, June 5—Deprived of the privilege of seeing visitors, a number of the convicts in the State penitentiary today began rioting. Troops were called out to quell them, and five convicts and three guards injured, several others being more or less bruised.

In the fighting between the convicts and the militia one man was killed and sixteen were wounded. Eight of the wounded are severely hurt and may die. Several thousand men were involved in the rioting. Fire, started by the convicts, did more than $200,000 damage before it could be subdued.

The trouble started when the guards, acting upon orders, announced yesterday morning at breakfast, that the privilege of seeing visitors had been discontinued. This was a signal when an uproar in the mess halls and tin dishes as well as crockery were being flying through the air, battering the guards on duty and driving them out of the room.

This success encouraged the convicts who proceeded to tear up the tables and benches and make the fragments into clubs, with which they attacked the guards when they attempted to return to restore order. Several of the latter were badly injured and received severe beatings.

The prison authorities finally sent out a call for assistance and a force of national guardsmen was rushed to the prison. In the mean time flames had been discovered in a number of the prison buildings and an alarm of fire was sent out, calling in the prison and the city fire departments. But when the flames arrived at the institution the convicts were found in full control of the situation and with their clubs and stones they drove the firemen away and refused to permit anything to be done to halt the progress of the flames.

This was the state of affairs when the militia arrived on the ground and began the work of subduing the prisoners. Taking advantage of their knowledge of the locality the prisoners managed to hold off the guardsmen until they had set fire to the big chair factory.

It was more than three hours after the first outbreak before the troops finally got the rebels under control. This was finally accomplished by the aid of a tremendous downpour of rain, which drove the last of the rioters, about two hundred in number, into a cell house and enabled the soldiers to surround them.

FIGHT ON ANTHRAX DR. CASE'S PROBLEM

Assistant Territorial Veterinarian Goes To Kauai To Eradicate Dread Cattle Plague

(Associated Press By U. S. Naval Communication Service)
Dr. Leonard N. Case, assistant territorial veterinarian, left for Kauai Monday evening to continue with the work of anthrax suppression on that island, having been put in complete charge of this work by the territorial department of agriculture and forestry. The intense interest taken in the Kauai anthrax situation was expressed by Senator Charles A. Rice, manager of the Lihue Ranch, who is in Honolulu going over the measures proposed by the government. He controls over two thousand head of stock, and states that the stockmen of the island will do everything in their power to stop the epidemic and keep the infection from their herds.

A. R. Glazier, deputy territorial veterinarian for Kauai, is considered by the board of agriculture to have his hands full with the routine duties of his office, and Dr. Case is accordingly being assigned to handle with jurisdiction over matters arising from anthrax. "We intend to play no favorites," stated A. L. C. Atkinson, member of the board, yesterday. "We consider this one of the most serious problems with which we have ever been confronted, and will leave no stone unturned to eradicate it."

No developments occurred yesterday in connection with the local situation. The military has been notified of the reduced quarantine area at Moliili, and will probably draw off a portion of the battalion guard now maintained there.

NATION AS SINGLE MAN PLEDGES ITSELF TO DO ITS BEST FOR LIBERTY

No Serious Untoward Incident Mars the Execution of the Government's Plan For First Step In Forming a Monster Army To Overcome Menace of German "Kultur" and Prussianism To the Rest of the Civilized World

SLACKER PLOTS BALKED

(Associated Press By U. S. Naval Communication Service)
WASHINGTON, June 6—With more than ten million estimated registrations filed the day set aside by proclamation of the President for the taking of names for America's great national army passed off quietly. Not a single untoward event marked it anywhere and the plots of the pacifists and anti-draft leaders fell flat in the face of a perfect harmony on the part of the people of the United States.

There will be no tabulations until today of course, but the authorities are confident that at least ten million men of military age, between twenty-one and thirty, inclusive of both ages, gave their names and signified their willingness to serve their country against the Hun menace.

THOUSANDS IGNORE EXEMPTION RIGHT
One of the chief features of the registration, which proved a surprise to the officials charged with the work of getting the names, was the fact that hundreds of thousands of men refused to take advantage of the exemptions provided for by the law. They merely declined to answer the questions as provided by the law, outlining their reasons why they should be exempt from military duty.

The department of justice had made enormous preparations for handling the registration and was prepared to meet and overcome considerable opposition. Instead of this the people appeared to be acting with a singleness of purpose that was remarkable and the machinery provided by the department was not called upon. Illustrating this it was announced last night that only four arrests had been reported officially late last night.

SOME TROUBLE FROM LABORITES
In some sections of the country it is true, there was more or less trouble from the laborites and the anarchists. In Butte, Montana, where the unions are particularly strong it was found necessary to proclaim martial law. Trouble followed a number of "red flag" parades organized by the laborite element.

In that city martial law had to be declared, following a riot by a large crowd that gathered in front of the federal building, from which flew the Stars and Stripes. Several shots were fired and several arrests were made. Women were prohibited from appearing on the streets and no one was allowed to stop.

The law was enforced with a firm hand, and wherever an attempt was made to defy or evade the law arrests followed promptly.

In general, however, it was demonstrated that the propaganda that has been carried out to encourage slackers and defeat registration met with scant favor by the people and the propagandists were shown to be without substantial backing or effective organization.

PEOPLE BACK OF THE WAR
For the most part, citizens liable to military duty or other duty under the provisions of the law registered willingly and cheerfully, demonstrating unmistakably that the people of the United States are solidly back of the war with Germany and are determined individually to do their share towards carrying it forward to complete victory.

Anti-conscription propaganda met with a hot reception in Omaha, Nebraska. E. F. Ensign, a Socialist, launched into a tirade on the streets against the draft law. A crowd of 3000 started him going up the street and set out after him in full cry. Ensign was rescued by the police before any material injury was done to him.

The State secretary of the Nebraska Socialists resigned, declaring that he had no sympathy with the anti-draft sentiment of the organization and would refuse to continue his connection with them.

Three foreigners were shot in a saloon in Detroit, Michigan. No other disorder in that city was reported, however.

In Phoenix, Arizona, three hundred Russian religious colonists who came West nine years ago refused to register, on the ground that they had taken a vow as a part of their religion against war.

Yesterday he returned from the field and finding the wife ill again drew her. Alarmed by the cries of his children, the eldest of whom was eleven, and the youngest nine years old, he then killed them. Laying their bodies on the bed beside that of his wife he poured kerosene over the mattress and set fire to the house. When the blaze leaped up he shot and killed himself.
